

Nairobi, Kenya
8 - 12 June 2020

Dangerous Goods course

US$ 650
incl. IATA Dangerous
Goods Regulations
book valued at $225!

1 WHY IS IT IMPORTANT?

Access to training on this subject is limited in Africa and expensive. The Foundation works on ensuring that also smaller operators have a chance to access this course by organising this course once per year in Africa. After all, from their operations, dangerous goods such as medical supplies and materials for the oil and gas industry find their way into the global aviation safety chain.

2 COURSE OBJECTIVES

This course covers all aspects of dangerous goods at category 6 level. It follows the ICAO technical instructions and IATA Dangerous Goods regulations, for airlines, freight forwarders, and shippers. Upon successful completion of the course and the final exam, delegates will receive a certificate that reflects the accreditation of the instructor.

3 WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

- Airline cargo acceptance and cargo agency staff
- Cargo operations and ground handling staff
- Civil Aviation Authorities and Dangerous Goods Officials
- Managers Emergency Planning within Airport Authorities
- Safety Managers and Managers of Emergency Response Systems
- Airport Fire Officers

Your senior instructor Patrick Schoenmaker from SCS Training and Consultancy in the Netherlands brings a 28 year track record in cargo handling, dangerous goods and cargo security. He is an IATA and Civil Aviation Authority-Netherlands accredited instructor for dangerous goods training and has extensive experience with training in Africa.

Course topics include:

- General Philosophy
- Using the Regulations
- State and Operator Variations
- Classification and Identification
- Packaging Instructions
- Types of Packaging
- Different Dangerous Goods Packed Together
- Specification Marking
- Marking and Labeling
- Documentation

Brought to you by:

Independent | Innovative | Non-profit

With:

SCS
TRAINING &
CONSULTANCY BV